Coincidentally, the same scene is reimagined in a club in the downbeat thriller Beiimaan Love as the women are making out for T-shirts. That's fine in the speeded-up world of Beiimaan Love, where a line can be crossed in an instant. The film is about an India-born businessman who was drugged by a woman in Singapore and sent back to India, where he is framed for a murder he didn't commit. The film's title is a Hindi phrase meaning "beyond all control" that is often used by parents when they feel their children have outstripped their expectations. Beiimaan Love was directed by Rajeesh Chaudhary, a maker of Beiimaan Love has given us the first look of the film and in the promotional still, we can clearly see the soul-soothing as well as warm colors are used in the background, whereas in the promotional still of Beiimaan Love as well, it is seen that the scenery is very blue and the colors are of a more serene kind. The film has been told with a bit of an indie flavour, with the look and feel of a sleeper horror film. Just like the title of the film says, it is an out-of-control thriller. The film is going to release on 24 June this year. From the look of the film, I am excited to watch it.
