I have a safety deposit box which is rented and my insurance agent is saying that I should keep my passport with me all the time. But at the same time he is saying that I should keep all other ID with me and things which has a high value. He is saying if I don't keep all these I will not be compensated in case of any accident (like fire etc). I just wanted to know: Does keeping your passport, other ID and things with personal value increase your insurance? If I don't keep all these on me, will my insurance company be compensated in case of any accident (like fire etc)? A: A general rule is that if a thing can be stolen, it is not covered by insurance, and if an insured person's own property can be stolen, it is not covered. The exception is when the items are valuable collectibles or antiques. There is an inherent risk associated with handling antique items so it is tempting for people to think that their insurance covers this. However, it is not uncommon for uninsurable antiques to get lost or damaged. If you can ensure that the items you own are valuable antiques, that is very likely to lower your costs, but if it isn't clear from the outset, then you probably don't want to take that risk. The cloned gene encoding erythrocyte membrane sialyltransferase. cDNA clones encoding the erythrocyte membrane sialyltransferase have been isolated from a cDNA library prepared from human erythroleukemia (HEL) cells. A cDNA clone, pT1715, has been sequenced and found to encode the entire 196 amino acid sequence deduced from the sequence of the protein. Hybridization studies using pT1715 as a probe have indicated
